- The P shot or the Priapus Shot uses platelet-rich tube (PRP) or Platelet Rich Fibrin (PRF), blood- deduced growth factors, to enhance the penis. The treatment increases the penis's perceptivity position, blood inflow, towel firmness and integrity. It may also increase the circumference and length of the penis, although that isn't the primary ideal of the Priapus Shot. This treatment is all natural in that the case's own platelet cells, growth factors, interleukins and tube are gathered from the case's blood, reused at the bedside and incontinently fitted back into the case's penis. Since the platelets, and growth factors are coming from the case's own blood there's no threat of the body rejecting the fitted material. The case's body reacts to the treated cells the same way as it does to a crack and incontinently begins restoring the towel. This process of rejuvenescence develops the underpinning towel performing in a 10 to 20 increase in length and circumference. Some cases may see immediate advancements. On average the case will notice an enhancement in perceptivity and function at 2-4 weeks, with full goods at 8-12 weeks. An increase of 1/2 inch or further in circumference and length is common in the maturity of men entering the P shot.
